ADVANTAGES

Experienced Management

The fund is managed by Joel Greenblatt and Robert Goldstein, who have over 70 years of investment experience.

Proprietary Research Methodology

Gotham follows a disciplined process of researching and valuing companies, with an emphasis on fundamentals such as cash flows, recurring earnings, capital efficiency and valuation.

Systematic Portfolio Construction

Company position sizes are weighted according to Gotham's assessment of value and rebalanced daily to take advantage of changing stock prices and fundamental information.

Risk Management

Risks are managed daily through a systematic process developed by our team of research professionals. Sector and position sizing constraints are maintained within a range so as to not widely deviate from the benchmark.

WHY GSPY?

Cash-Flow Based Value Focus: The fund reweights the companies within the S&P 500 from cheapest to most expensive, based on Gotham's proprietary valuation framework, emphasizing low price to cash flow and strong operating fundamentals.

Metrics Relative to Benchmark¹:

	Gotham Yield	Return on Capital

The performance data quoted represents past performance and is not a guarantee of future results. Investment return and value of the ETF shares will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when sold or redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than performance data quoted. Performance data for the most recent month-end is available at www.GothamETFs.com. Index returns are for illustrative purposes only. Index performance includes the reinvestment of dividends but does not reflect transaction fees, management fees, or any other costs. It is not possible to invest directly in an index.

A fund's NAV is the sum of all its assets less any liabilities, divided by the number of shares outstanding. The market price is the most recent price at which the fund was traded.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

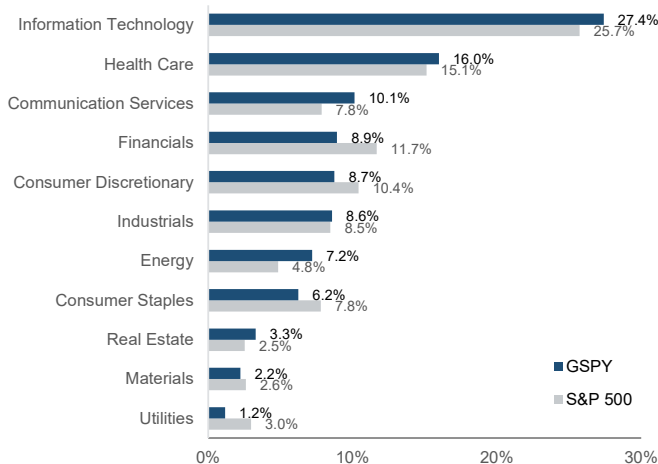

*The Fund's investment adviser has contractually agreed to reduce its unitary management fee to 0.50% of the Fund's average daily net assets through at least December 31, 2023.

¹Metrics shown are averages for the Fund and the benchmark and are estimates as of the date indicated. Gotham Yield and Return on Capital are based on Gotham's research methodology. Gotham's cash flow yield and return on capital metrics are used to compare companies in a consistently meaningful way. Gotham's analyst team utilizes a proprietary research process to assess a company's pre-tax cash flow, return on capital, and enterprise value. This information is updated throughout the year to account for company performance. The metrics for any one company or portfolio can change daily to reflect either new information and/or changing stock price. The metrics shown are of the individual companies held by the fund or benchmark and are position-weighted averages. Gotham Yield and Return on Capital are calculated by taking each company's adjusted free cash flow yield or return on tangible capital divided by its adjusted enterprise value. Companies for which there is not applicable data to calculate Gotham Yield or Return on Capital, primarily financial companies, have been excluded. The metrics do not represent or predict the performance of any fund, and do not represent income received by the fund or by shareholders in the fund.

The S&P 500 Index is a market capitalization-weighted index of 500 large-capitalization stocks commonly used to represent the U.S. equity market. The performance and volatility of the fund will be different than that of the index.

INVESTMENT PROCESS

- The Co-CIOs and their team of equity analysts employ Gotham's proprietary analytical framework to evaluate stocks within the S&P 500 coverage universe on measures of absolute and relative value.
- Gotham's equity research and risk controls are used to construct a portfolio buying all 500 stocks in the S&P 500 Index but reweighting according to Gotham's assessment of value.
- In general, as a company appears cheaper, its weight in the portfolio increases and conversely the more expensive it appears, the weight in the portfolio decreases relative to the index.
- The portfolio is traded daily to weight most heavily those stocks priced at the largest discount to Gotham's assessment of value.
- Sector and position sizing constraints maintained within a range so as to not widely deviate from benchmark.
- Position sizes are also subject to tax, trading and risk management.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

An investor should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of the fund carefully before investing. The prospectus and summary prospectus contains this and other information about the fund. To obtain a copy of the prospectus and summary prospectus, please call 877-974-6852 or visit www.GothamEtf.com. The prospectus and summary prospectus should be read carefully before investing.

An investment in the fund is subject to numerous risks including the possible loss of principal. There can be no assurance that the fund will achieve its investment objectives. Equity securities, such as common stocks, are subject to market, economic and business risks that may cause their prices to fluctuate. As with all ETFs, fund shares may be bought and sold in the secondary market at market prices. The market price normally should approximate each fund's net asset value per share (NAV), but the market price sometimes may be higher or lower than the NAV. The fund is new with a limited operating history. There are a limited number of financial institutions authorized to buy and sell shares directly with the funds, and there may be a limited number of other liquidity providers in the marketplace. There is no assurance that fund shares will trade at any volume, or at all, on any stock exchange. Low trading activity may result in shares trading at a material discount to NAV. Please see the prospectus and summary prospectus for a complete description of principal risks.
